

Maia Hive puts AI agents on operational inboxes — claims, policies, scheduling, support. They read every email, do the work, and reply in the same thread. Six sealed cells keep it safe; every one is enforced in the platform, not stated in a policy.

And this is the honey.

The yield, measured — one month of the live demo company, straight from its bill. Every rand of AI usage bought back thirteen rand of admin time.

23h 50m

ADMIN TIME RETURNED

Computed per run from the steps that actually succeeded, at your configured hourly rate.

R1 724

SAVED IN JUNE, NET OF AI COST

Printed on the same bill that charges you — the saving is a line item, not a promise.

R132.20

TOTAL AI USAGE FOR THE MONTH

Metered in rand on the company's own key, at honest per-token prices, visible on every run.

Spend caps, live JUNE 2026

Claims team	R79.80 / R120.00
Policy team	80% warning sent · R51.10 / R60.00
Company	R132.20 / R300.00

Caps compare against invoice-rand — the number means what the bill says. At the cap, new work holds and replays; nothing is silently dropped.

🎵 BUILT BY VOICE

Describe the workflow to Hanna, the built-in copilot — typed or spoken. Review every proposed step, dry-run it on a sample email, then publish.

📄 YOUR TEAM'S PORTAL

Live runs and traces for everyone; users, credentials, caps, and the bill for owners. Each role sees exactly what it's allowed to.

⚙️ MODELS YOU CHOOSE

Each workflow names its model explicitly, pinned per published version. No silent substitutions — a model change is a new, reviewable version.

WHAT THE HIVE NEVER DOES

We do not train on your email. We do not need your data handed over before we can start. We do not let an agent spend past the cap you set, and we never send a message your published workflow didn't define. The receipts are yours.
